

Reunion

By James Choi

David looks down at his drink and sits quietly as he remembers a memory of his mom.

DAVID

(chuckles)

There was this time when I got lost in a mall, because I was embarrassed to hold her hand. I told her big boys don't hold their mom's hands. Then I wandered off and got lost. I didn't know what to do. I got scared that I would never find her, and just started crying on the spot.

I don't know how much time passed but when I opened my eyes she was right in front of me. She had tears in her eyes and took off her heels. I thought that she would be mad, but she just hugged me so tight. I thought that she would never let go. I didn't want her to let go.

Email: S.jameschoi64@gmail.com